GOVERNOR IS ASKED TO STOP GAMBLING

FLAGRANT VIOLATION OF LAW IN SHADOW OF STATE CAPITOL

Attorney General Suggested Meeting of Governor Donahey, Prosecutor King, Sheriff Gump and Himself to Determine Responsibility For Race Betting at Beulah Park.

Governor Donahey was asked late Tuesday by Attorney General Crabbe to order Sheriff Gump, Franklin county sheriff, to stop the open and notorious gambling that is being carried on at Beulah Park, Grove City.

"The sheriff has publicly stated that if you will order him to close up the various forms of gambling complained of, that he will do so," Crabbe wrote the governor.

He proposed that Donahey meet in conference with County Prosecutor King, Sheriff Gump and the attorney general so that the responsibility for enforcing the law against gambling in the county may be "definitely determined."

Crabbe said he will meet with the committee of Gump's and King's consent could be gotten. The committee then went to see Gump and King who consented to attend. The conference was arranged for two o'clock Thursday afternoon in Sheriff Gump's office.

The letter followed a visit of Columbus ministers, who have been seeking to stop betting at Beulah Park and who have been attempting to arrange a conference of the four officials. The ministers had already been to the governor's office and been told by Donahey that he has no jurisdiction over sheriffs except for failure to enforce prohibition laws.

For that reason, they were told, nothing could be accomplished by his participating in a conference relative to the Beulah Park situation.

Not only the race track "tout" but also "the most dangerous element of the country ply their trade" in connection with the form of gambling being permitted at Beulah Park, the attorney general charged in his letter.

Appointment of the committee followed a meeting of 10 ministers at the Y. M. C. A. where they were addressed by Attorney General Crabbe and Prosecutor King. Crabbe charged:

That Donahey and Gump have an understanding that neither will enforce the laws at Beulah park.

That gambling is going on in the shadow of the State Capitol.

That powerful interests deter officials from acting.

"Many believe the prosecuting attorney and the attorney general have power to enforce the laws," Crabbe said.

"The attorney general has no power to appear in criminal cases unless it is made mandatory by a statute or he is requested by the chief executive of the state.

"It is not the duty of the ministers to see that law is enforced at Beulah park or any other place. It is your privilege, however, to see that the public officer charged with a duty does it.

"You ministers do not see the far-reaching effect of this at Beulah park. It will go on until late in the fall unless it is stopped.

"A most vicious element follows the races at Beulah park," Crabbe said.

"It was surprising to me to read in the papers that the sheriff said he would make arrests if some one swore out affidavits, when it is the duty of the sheriff to arrest law violators and hold them in jail until warrants are sworn out, if necessary."

As Crabbe ended his attack on Donahey he began answering questions hurled at him by the ministers.

Up to Executive.

In response to these, he said:

"The constitution gives the chief executive the power to enforce the laws. He shall see that they are enforced.

"The sheriff will not refuse to do his duty if requested by the governor.

I am confident there is an understanding between the sheriff and the governor."

Dr. John G. King, pastor of United Presbyterian church, made the motion for the appointment of the committee.

Before Crabbe spoke, Dr. Bickel asked County Prosecutor John R. King to explain his ruling declaring betting at Beulah park illegal.

Prosecutor King said there was no question that betting as conducted at Beulah park is illegal. Crabbe concurred.

"The newspapers properly interpreted the opinion," King said.

Dr. King then asked: "Isn't it a good idea to see if we have a sheriff? Maybe Holycross left a dummy."

"Well, he's drawing a salary," the prosecutor rejoined.

When Dr. Bickel asked King what procedure could be taken, Prosecutor King said: "I'd call on the sheriff. He ought to go out there and arrest somebody. Then he can take them to the mayor of Grove City, or, if the machines are outside the village, to a justice of the peace. We'll prosecute whenever he asks us to prosecute."

OPERATING AUTOMOBILE WHILE DRUNK

A Hartman and Carl Conley, of Columbus, operating a motor vehicle, drove south on Pickaway street over Franklin street and were ditched, going down over forms and the bank at the new paving construction on Franklin street.

Both men were under the influence of liquor and they were placed under arrest at 2 o'clock this morning. Hartman was fined $100 and costs for operating a vehicle while intoxicated and Conley was assessed $10 and costs for being drunk and disorderly.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON FIRE.

Alarm 51 was sent in at five o'clock Tuesday afternoon from West Mill street. A fire in a hollow log was discovered back of the Baptist church. There was no damage.

Indians to Hold Big Convention

JONATHAN WALL

Passed Away After Long Illness—Funeral and Burial Thursday Afternoon.

Editor Union-Herald:—Mr. Jay Wall was a son of Absalom and Hannah Wall of Wilmington, Ohio, being the youngest son of five children and was born March 11, 1846.

On March 18, 1875 he was united in marriage to Adele S. Shaeffer only child of Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Shaeffer.

Mr. Wall's family came originally from England and located at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, and were Quakers, and Mr. Wall adhered strictly to the traditional faith of his Quaker parents.

However, when in the physical vigor of manhood he attended the Methodist church regularly and recently united with this church, it being also the church home of Mrs. Wall.

Mr. Wall was a very generous giver to the church and to all causes that were for the moral uplift of mankind; but so modest and unassuming was he in his efforts, that no one but those who were intimate with his generous and lovable disposition ever knew of it.

Mr. Wall was a contractor and civil engineer and traveled extensively, often making three or four trips across the continent each year.

When a resident of Minneapolis, Minnesota, Mr. Wall built five bridges across the Mississippi river, and while living in Chicago built a number of the beautiful and artistic buildings for the World's fair.

On his last trip to California Mr. Wall by his quiet and persuasive endeavor influenced the officials to accept and build his design over the Sacramento river at Red Bluff, California.

In recent years, Mr. Wall's company merged into the American Bridge Co., of New York, and the last contract of Mr. Wall's for the eighty million dollar company, was the Euclid avenue viaduct of Cleveland. With this effort the vigor and virile manhood gave way, and Mr. and Mrs. Wall camped out in God's beautiful out-of-doors, for nine summers, to restore this gentle man to health, but all effort was unavailing and Mr. Wall was never fully restored to health.

The funeral services will be held from the home Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, conducted by Rev. E. K. Johnson. Burial in Forest cemetery. Please omit flowers.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From the Wires by Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Columbus, May 6 (UP).—In one of the most far reaching labor decisions it has ever handed down the Ohio supreme court has held that "closed shop" contracts between public utilities and workers barring non-union men are null and void.

The high tribunal upheld the court of appeals in Cuyahoga county which declared closed shop contracts to be contrary to public policy.

The issue was raised over the annual contract between the union street car men and the Cleveland Railway company.

Columbus, May 6 (UP).—Governor Donahey in a glowing tribute to the mothers of the state today issued a proclamation designating next Sunday as Mothers' Day.

Cities cannot collect occupational taxes on businesses from which the state is collecting excise taxes, the supreme court held in a case from Hamilton county involving a telephone company and a railroad.

The court has practically knocked out the conference of Ohio municipalities formed last fall to recommend legislation to the state. The court held city councils have no right to appropriate money for dues and expenses of the organization.

Parking Space

A certain church in a middle western town maintains a nursery where members of the congregation who have young children may leave them in care of a young woman of the parish while they are attending the morning service.

When church was over, one fine day last summer, a little boy and a little girl remained unclaimed long after all the other children had been taken home. Finally, a man and a woman came rushing in breathlessly. As the children ran to their arms, the mother explained apologetically to the young woman in charge:

"We're so sorry to have kept you after hours, but we simply couldn't get around the course any sooner."—Life.

LOGAN GAS CO. PLANNING TO RAISE RATES

The Logan Gas Co., Tuesday, began its fight before the state public utilities commission for an increase of 72½ cents on the initial cost of gas to consumers, which virtually amounts to a service charge. The hearing affects 71 municipalities and more than 97,000 gas consumers in eastern and southern Ohio. The present rate is now 45 cents per 1000 cubic feet.

Attorney Freeman T. Eagleson of Columbus, directed the company's fight for increased rates and he was assisted by J. E. Mullin of Kane, Pennsylvania, general counsel. The company was prepared to introduce as witnesses A. J. Newman, comptroller and auditor of the company, and K. C. Krick, Columbus, vice president. Mr. Newman was the first witness called.

IN MEMORIAM

Editor Union-Herald:—Rose Ethel, daughter of J. M. and Mary E. Thompson, was born near Rolling Prairie, Indiana, July 2, 1891, and died in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, April 30, 1925.

She was united in marriage with Howard Glen Borror November 28, 1911. She was converted and joined the King Methodist Episcopal church when a young girl and had always remained a worker in the church. After her marriage she took her membership to the Grove City M. E. church where she had lived since.

She leaves to mourn their loss one son and three daughters, besides her husband, father, J. M. Thompson, two brothers, W. P. Thompson, of Grove City; T. M. Thompson, of Hamilton, New York, two sisters, Mrs. Willis Rader and Mrs. E. F. Hoover, both of Orient.

The funeral was conducted from the M. E. church in Grove City at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon with burial in the Grove City cemetery.

Not a Legal Precedent

In Chancery court in London recently a decision involving $500 was made on the toss of a penny. It was to fix the ultimate costs of the litigation. The court attaches, in admitting that form of settlement, specified that it should not set up a legal precedent in British law, however.

Tuberculosis Reduced

At the end of the year 1924 more than 60,000 herds of cattle containing over 1,000,000 head had been officially accredited as free from tuberculosis.

"AUNT BILLY" HIGH SCHOOL COMEDY PLAY

Capacity Audience Thoroughly Enjoyed Entertainment Tuesday Evening.

"Aunt Billy From Texas" a stirring comedy was put on by the dramatic class of the Circleville high school Tuesday evening and the performance drew a crowded house. Long before the curtain went up the S. R. O. sign was out and standing room was at a premium.

The plot was exceedingly funny. A bunch of girl students under the chaperonage of Aunt Jeannette Grimley (Alice Ada May) were stopping at a hotel and in order to break the monotony, they were compelled to play a joke on their chaperone which worked out nicely. The ingenuity of the girls was put to a test by the ever watchful chaperone, but they succeeded at last in putting one over on the old dame, thru the instrumentality of one, Ruth Owens, (Franklin Kibler), a woman impersonator.

It took the tact of Uncle Dick Lansing, of Texas, (Forrest Liston) a visitor, to straighten things out and everything was just lovely again.

The minstrel portion of the performance was most excellent. The black face artists did themselves proud and made a hit with their topical songs.

Ralph Barnhart was the musical director of this part of the program and George Hitler was the director. The latter's stunts were well received for George as a monologist, he has no equal, as an amateur. His jokes and quips made hits and his dancing was good.

Carl Palm, one of the minstrels made a hit as a singer and received a recall.

Miss Eleanor Snyder's make-up was a scream. She made a nice looking Topsy. Her dancing was artistic and beautiful and she was roundly encored.

The high senior class play, "The Man on the Box" will be the next attraction May 27 and 28, in the high school auditorium.

One of the most noticeable features of the play Tuesday evening and which added most wonderfully to the performance was the orchestra music, which is under the leadership of Professor Zaenglein. It is by far the best drilled orchestra that the high school has had for years.

In Contempt of Court.

Jonathan Swank was brought in Tuesday on order of Probate Judge Adkins and was committed to jail in contempt of court, until such time as he complies with the order of court and pay temporary alimony, pending a suit for divorce, which has been filed against him.

Jock Misunderstood

His bagpipe playing was the chief thing that mattered to him in life. One night while he was strutting about the room, skirling for all he was worth, his wife attempted a mild and very belated protest.

"Jock," she said, "that's an awful noise you're making."

Jock sat down and took off his boots, then got up and resumed his piping in his stocking soles.

Happiness Not Advertised

True happiness is of a retired nature, and an enemy to pomp and noise; it arises, in the first place, from the enjoyment of one's self, and in the next, from the friendship and conversation of a few select companions.

Seek Good Expression
Style is the dress of thoughts; let them be ever so just, if your style is homely, coarse and vulgar, they will appear to as much disadvantage, and be as ill received, as your person, though ever so well proportioned, would be if dressed in rags, dirt and tatters.—Chesterfield.

AIRPLANES TO HAVE WONDERFUL SPEED

Scientists Promise Great Things for the Future.

Our new air age promises to be a high-flying age. The 100 miles an hour of present type airplanes will, it is considered, be exceeded greatly by adapting machines so that they can take full advantage of the lessened resistance of the air at high altitudes.

Before long we may look back on flying machines of today, driving a laborious way through retarding lower air, with that same pity with which a traveler in the blue and gold Riviera express would let his thoughts wander back to the times when, sitting in open trucks, the first railway travelers jolted along with cinders from the engine blowing into their faces. Wonderful results are rewarding an eight-years' research in sending airplanes up to high altitudes and there making them fly miles an hour faster than would be possible in dense air near the world's surface, writes Harry Harper in the London Contemporary Review.

What science is profiting by now are experiments, prosecuted assiduously, in perfecting a "turbo-compressor," or light, small, high-speed turbine, the function of which is to "supercharge" the engine of a high-flying plane.

What latest triumphs imply is a virtual abandonment of flying near the earth's surface, and an elevation of regular aerial movement miles above our heads. Hitherto planes flying at great heights have failed to profit in speed from the lessened air resistance of high altitudes because their motors have fallen away in power. But the "turbo-compressor" supplies the engine with high altitude air at such pressure that the thinness of this air, as compared with low altitude air, is compensated for, and the engine preserves its power even at great heights.

In recent experiments remarkable results have been achieved, not only with supercharged engines, but also with propellers having variable angle blades designed to function efficiently at immense altitudes. Sending up planes till they have been miles high, experts have been able lately to increase their normal speed by more than thirty miles an hour.

Scientifically, the quest now proceeds along the following lines: Experiments are to be made in increasing still farther the height of "supercharged" flying, while another research will be to design and perfect saloons in which passengers can be carried through the air at enormous heights and speeds. Such saloons will be supplied automatically, under pressure, with air rendered just as breathable as that at low altitudes.

Scientists, enthusiastic as to the possibilities of immensely rapid flying through thin air at vast heights, now predict that researches will culminate in the institution of regular "super-express" airways, miles high, along which globe-girdling craft will hurtle at 250 and 300 miles an hour.

To Add Charm to Milady's Costume

Details of Dress That Will Interest Women Who Like to Be in Style.

Coats for young people are important this season, and they, too, follow lines of extreme simplicity. They are shown in models for spring, in tweed, homespun, velours, silk, satin, what you will, those for the larger girls being almost always trimmed with fur.

All of the little animal furs are popular, and baby leopard carries on, with the foxes, dyed squirrels, ferret, fawn and the others.

A faddish trimming is white clipped wool; it has the quality of otter, but is snow white.

The young girl "in the know" refers to her "ensemble," and some of the coats in kasha, charmine, broadcloth or satin are lined with a figured silk or crepe to match the dress.

The last word in extravagance of fashion, and incidentally of purse, is illustrated by the novelty heralded as the anklet hose. It is a stocking of sheerest chiffon silk, with a single row of rhinestones wound about in serpentine fashion, beginning at the ankle. It is one of those flashy fads, such as the ankle bracelet, that appears from time to time and has popularity, of a sort, though not with women of elegance.

This fancy for over elaborating articles of lingerie is shown in corsets and brassieres made of silk, satin, ribbon or gauze in pale rose and flesh tints, and having a line of rhinestones to finish the top; or in some other fashion to add an artificial note.

Quite fascinating are the latest things in bracelets received from an exclusive Parisian designer. They are fashioned like the flexible and the "love link" bracelets that have been so popular. But they are set in a manner to give them more importance; that is, with semi-precious stones and cameos.

Corals, the old-fashioned intaglios, like little brooches, are set separately and joined with slender gold links. Finely cut cameos, in white and black, and the two-toned stones, agates and quartz, moonstones, chrysoprase, cat's eyes and innumerable other old-style stones are used in these quaint adornments.

Just as the softer and gentler fabrics associated with the styles for early spring are shown, there are received among the latest novelties the most gorgeous laces and fancy nets in gold and silver.

The latest thing in fans is a superb affair of rose-colored ostrich plumes, one yard long. The feathers are tinted from a rich shade of rose to the faintest, and they are uncured, in the natural, not the "willow" form, and are mounted on sticks of beautiful dark tortoise shell.

Flowers as garniture are seen more and more, and now they are used frankly, apparently without any reason d'être, on plain silk frocks. In a pretty little costume of changeable taffeta, three sprays of silk roses with their silver-crested leaves and flexible stems are added, one at the low line of the bodice on one side, the other diagonally spaced across the front of the skirt.

Flowers Are Used for Spring and Summer Hats

Trimming appears in plenty on the new millinery for spring and summer. Flowers are especially favored in this model of orchid horsehair and faille ribbon.

Semi-Precious Stones Are Used in Bracelets

Surprisingly pretty bracelets are shown in silver and silver gilt, set with semi-precious stones, the Scotch pebbles that imitate so well the real jewels, and with just plain glass. They are dainty in design, fine in detail of workmanship and imitate so well the genuine article that the cheap price at which they may be bought is most gratifying.

A bracelet of this type is a slender chain, widening in the middle, where little squares of the metal hold semi-precious stones. Imitation emeralds, amethysts, rubies and the real moonstone which is very fashionable at the moment, present a variety of these dainty chic ornaments.

Debt Mankind Owes to Benefactors of Race

Of all the faults of human character, surely none is so base as heartless indifference to benefactors. And have we today any benefactors like Caesar, Alfred, Cromwell and their compeers? Our closest friends, our earliest teachers, our parents themselves are not more truly our benefactors than they. To them we owe what we prize most—country, freedom, peace, knowledge, art, thought, the cultivated sense of right and wrong. What a long tale of patience, sacrifice and martyrdom is the history of human progress! Should it not affect us as if we were reading in the diary of a parent the record of his struggles for his children? For us they toiled, endured, bled and died; that we by their labor might have rest; by their thought might know, by their death might live happily, writes Frederic Harrison in "The Meaning of History."

We know the devotion which the believers in every creed have felt for the authors of their faith. Intolerant and narrow as this has often been, it yet bears witness to a sense of one of the deepest and best of our emotions. The feeling may become too often partial and bigoted; yet let us beware of neglecting it. Let us dread above bigotry itself, a temper of irreverence and ingratitude. For whom did these men work, if not for us? Not for themselves, when they gave up peace, honor, life, reputation itself—as when the great French republican exclaimed, "May my name be accursed, so that France be free!" Not for themselves they worked, but for their cause, for their fellows, for us, their children. Not that they might have fame, but that they might leave the world better than they found it; that the good time, long hoped for, might come at last.

Fighting Japanese Beetle

Seeking for a siren lure for the scourge of New Jersey and Pennsylvania orchards and gardens, the Japanese beetle, the bureau of entomology, United States Department of Agriculture, has discovered that geraniol sprayed in plants brings every Japanese beetle for a long distance to windward to the tree. The beetles hover around it, inhaling the odor with apparent delight. They do not eat the geraniol, but recent experiments have shown that they enjoy the taste of lead oleate. Previously it has not been possible to persuade them to eat arsenate of lead, because some instinct seems to warn them it is poisonous, but when this is mixed with lead oleate the taste of the arsenic and lead is disguised.

Ahead of Times

Richard Lieber, director of the state conservation department, is thinking of starting a crusade against the state seal.

"We are not cutting down trees any more, or at least we should not advocate it, and soon we will not be able to," he said. "Our present seal, do you know what it represents? I will tell you. The last man in the state cutting down the last tree in the state, while the last buffalo leaves the state and the sun is sinking behind the distant hills to leave a barren state in complete darkness. The designer of the seal was a prophet."—Indianapolis News.

PROCLAMATION

Mayor Fitzpatrick Asks for Clean Up and Paint Up Campaign In City.

Come on, let's put things in order. Our whole city can and should be made as clean and orderly as its cleanest home. Then we will have a safer, happier, healthier city.

Ambition in its highest conception is to dream big dreams and make them come true. The splendid ambition to have a city clean and beautiful is soon to become a reality by the co-operation of all the people.

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as mayor, and with the hearty approval of many far-seeing and zealous citizens, we hereby proclaim the week of May 4 to 9 1925 as the opening week of a continuous Clean Up and Paint Up campaign.

Away with the rubbish piles! Banish the plague spots! Clean up streets and alleys! Cut the weeds, mow the lawn and trim the hedges! Repair and paint every building that needs it.

We need this thoro cleaning and renovation. It is the sensible thing to do—for the health, safety, thrift, pride and happiness of all our people.

It is everybody's job. Every man, woman and child will be expected to help. Let there be no slackers.

GEO. M. FITZPATRICK,

Mayor.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

A very pleasant and social event of the season was the banquet given by Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Harble at the school auditorium at Darbyville last Wednesday evening. It was given by the pastor in appreciation of the songs and help rendered him by the choir during his Passion week services. The following guests were entertained; C. M. Beatty, T. A. Beatty, Ben Downs, Lee Downs, Lloyd White, Chester Downs, Mrs. Emma Hill and son, Florine, Elizabeth Hott, Kathryn Downs, Violet Ginder, Doris Hott, Addie Downs, Gladys Shade, Lois Beatty, Mabel Downs, and Ona Beatty. Miss Lottie Downs and Jennie Hott assisted Mrs. Harble and ice cream, cake, coffee, after dinner mints and peanuts were served. The Rev. and Mrs. Harble were voted by all to be ideal and charming entertainers.

TO SPEAK IN CIRCLEVILLE

Noted Evangelist Will Deliver Famous Address, "Our National Heritage".

Christian citizens of Circleville will have unusual opportunity in hearing the famous address of Rev. James S. McGaw, D. D., on the subject; "Our National Heritage; Shall We Keep It?" Arrangements have been made thru the efforts of the local pastors and other religious and patriotic leaders of the community for a mass meeting to be held Wednesday evening, May 6, at 7:30 p. m., in the Presbyterian church, Mound street

Those most active in making arrangements are the following; Rev. F. E. Logee, of the Presbyterian church, Rev. E. A. Tovey of the Evangelical church, Rev. S. W. Hiles of the U. B. church, Rev. E. K. Johnson of the M. E. church and Rev. R. L. Baird of the Protestant Episcopal church.

These gentlemen count themselves most fortunate to be able to secure such a speaker as Dr. McGaw for this occasion. Dr. McGaw is well known thru having served most efficiently as president of the International Protestant League for a number of years. He is now general secretary of the National Reform association, with which the International Protestant League recently merged.

An unusual advertising program has been carried out thru the enterprise of the local leaders having the plans in charge and it is expected that a large audience will greet Dr. McGaw on this occasion.

Hour of Death

For some time there has been a prevalent idea that more people die at midnight than at any other hour. This has led to an investigation of the 24,742 natural deaths that occurred in the borough of Manhattan, New York, during 1923. It was found that fewer people died at midnight than at any other hour of the day. The heaviest mortality took place between the hours of 1 and 3 a. m., those small hours of the morning in which doctors have long declared that vitality is at its lowest. The number of deaths were lowest from eight o'clock to midnight. For the 24 hours of the day deaths occurred as follows: 1 a. m., 1,254; 2 a. m., 1,114; 3, 1,074; 4, 1,085; 5, 1,118; 6, 1,089; 7, 1,014; 8, 1,024; 9, 1,043; 10, 1,040; 11, 1,080; noon, 878; 1 p. m., 980; 2 p. m., 1,013; 3, 1,042; 4, 1,090; 5, 1,020; 6, 991; 7, 1,100; 8, 919; 9, 952; 10, 989; 11, 991; midnight, 801 deaths.

Thoughts of Troubles

We should also think over our troubles, for we should think over our whole life. The sweetness and goodness of things belong to us only at this price. They console us for disenchantments and give value to existence.—Jean Finnot.

KEEPING WELL

EXOPHTHALMIC GOITER

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

THE number of inquiries aroused by my previous article on exophthalmic goiter shows the public interest in this disease. Apparently there must be many cases existing, especially among young girls and women at the time of change of life.

Unlike simple goiter, or enlargement of the thyroid gland, exophthalmic goiter is a condition in which slight enlargement of the thyroid is only one of the principal symptoms. The others are protrusion of the eyes, rapid heart action, general physical weakness with a highly excitable nervous condition.

The early expectations of beneficial effects following surgical removal of part of the thyroid gland have not been realized. Physicians are giving more attention than ever before to the treatment of exophthalmic goiter by non-surgical means.

In a recent number of the Journal of the American Medical Association Dr. J. Marion Read of San Francisco summarizes the accumulated knowledge on this condition.

He says that, first and foremost, it must be recognized that the cause of exophthalmic goiter is unknown and that it is impossible, for this reason, to follow any positive methods of treatment. Until the cause of a disease is known physicians can only use those methods which have apparently given the best results.

The duration of the disease cannot, at present, be shortened very much by any known means. The treatment, therefore, should aim to carry the patient through the course of the disease with as little permanent damage as possible and with the greatest possible degree of comfort. The greatest danger is that the heart may break down under the strain of its over-exertion.

The most effective treatment, therefore, is rest, both physical and mental. This means that in the early stages and in the most severe cases the patient should be kept in bed, activity being allowed only as the patient improves and feels capable of exertion.

More important than physical rest, however, is the avoidance of mental strain and worry. The young girl who is trying to stand at the head of her class or who is using up her strength in social diversions, as well as the mother of forty-five who is worrying about the education of her children, should, so far as possible, be relieved of these causes of anxiety, even if it means taking the girl out of school or sending the mother away from home for a time.

X-ray, iodine and other drugs may be of help, if given under the constant supervision of a competent physician, but rest in every form remains the most important treatment of which we know today.

Radio Plumbs Sea's Depths

One of the most important developments in navigation in recent times, the "fathometer," which measures the depth of the sea at the rate of 240 times a minute, was demonstrated on a trip of the Berkshire of the Merchants and Miners' line, between Baltimore and Boston. This instrument, working on the principle of transmitting and receiving sound waves through the water, takes the place of the sounding lead used since the early days of ocean transportation.

The fathometer was demonstrated on a three-day voyage in the presence of newspaper men and technical experts. Throughout this period it gave soundings of one to four a second, depending on the nature of the ocean bed, corresponding with the depths shown on the charts.

AMUSEMENTS

Heralded as the best picture yet of the jazz series, "Sinners in Silk," a Hobart Henley production, comes to the Met theater on Wednesday for a run of two days. It tells not only of youthful revellers growing older, but of elderly revellers growing younger, and is said to contain some of the peppiest and most interesting scenes yet made of life in the younger smart set.

The elderly group which enters the life of today is represented in the picture by Adolphe Menjou, who plays the role of a gentleman of uncertain years who takes the Steinach rejuvenation treatment and jumps with a bang into the high powered activities of younger society. Menjou, who has become a firm favorite in parts where he appears as a blase, cynical, and yet humorous individual is said to be more blase, cynical and humorous than ever before in this production.

Eleanor Boardman plays the role of a girl who is attracted in spite of herself to this old-young charmer. Conrad Nagel is the young man who really loves her. One of the features of this picture is a bevy of beautiful girls who appear as the different types of New York's smart set. Some of the players are Miss du Pont, Virginia Lee Corbin, Dorothy Dwan, Ann Luther, Peggy Elinor, Eugenie Gilbert, Mary Aitken and Estelle Clark.

"Sinners in Silk," a Metro-Gwyn picture, was adapted by Carey Wilson from an original story by Benjamin Glazer. It is a Louis B. Mayer presentation.

CONDITION OF AGRICULTURE MUCH BETTER

Spring Work is Well Advanced and Prices Are More Satisfactory.

The general agricultural situation in the United States is the most cheerful in five years, plowing and planting on May 1, are fully two weeks ahead of the usual seasonal condition, crop acreage will be increased, better prices are being received for wheat, hogs, dairy and poultry products, prospects are bright for higher beef cattle prices and fewer pigs have been farrowed this spring, according to the new Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation index just issued from an exhaustive analysis of reports from 1512 field observers throughout the nation. These 1512 observers, taking 100 as normal, considered crop conditions, prices received for agricultural products, prices paid for commodities the farmer buys, price prospects and the general outlook for agriculture. On this basis they found that the May 1st index of farm conditions is 83.6. The observers' reports indicate that the American farmer is slowly but surely beating back to normalcy.

Farm work is from ten days to two weeks ahead of normal, the index reports. A dry April over most of the country gave farmers an opportunity to prepare the land and get their planting well under way; 76.3 per cent of the spring plowing and planting was completed on May 1st. The prevailing higher prices of wheat, hogs, dairy and poultry products is reflected in the general tendency to increase crop acreage. A widespread deficiency of moisture is reported, however, which subsequent rains must make good or crops will suffer.

A 20 per cent reduction in the number of sows farrowed this spring as compared to last year, is also reported by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation observers. This is believed to reflect the scarcity and high price of corn, and was to be expected as the result of the recent over-production in hogs.

Corn prices foreshadow a gain in acreage for this crop, but the poor quality of the seed corn will cut down the yield per acre in many states. Winter wheat abandonment of 13.7 per cent for the United States indicates that the crop will be smaller this year than last. An increase in spring wheat seeding is noted, but the decline in the market recently will make necessary a revision of earlier estimates of an appreciably larger spring crop.

A bumper crop production in oats is in sight, and indications are that both rye and barley will equal last year's production.

IN MEMORIAM

Thurman R. Lyle, a native of New Holland, Perry township, Pickaway County, Ohio, died suddenly of heart disease, at his residence 49 Price Avenue, Columbus, Sunday night after several weeks' illness. He leaves his wife, one son, Lorin, attorney for the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., in Akron; two sisters and four brothers. Mr. Lyle was a member of the New Holland lodge, Knights of Pythias.

When deceased was a resident of this county he was prominently identified with the Democratic party and was appointed a guard at Ohio Penitentiary by former Governor George B. Cox.

Funeral services will be held from the late home Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, burial in Union cemetery.

Weather Optimism.

Everybody, said Mark Twain, complains of the weather, but nobody ever does anything about it. It is the common failing of humanity thoughtlessly to consider its personal comfort first, in disregard of the benefits which may result from a warm spell which ripens the crops, or a rainy season which fills the natural reservoirs, or a cold snap which is supposed to make away with next season's orchard and garden pests. And there is also on the side of the occasional weather excess the testimony of Dr. Ellsworth Huntington of Yale that monotony of temperature and humidity are not good for civilization, that man progresses most where there is a variety of climate.

MAN NEAR PERFECT "STATE OF HEALTH"

Mortality Rate Steadily Being Lowered.

It is probable that civilized man in the Twentieth century is not only healthier than any other human being that ever lived, with the possible exception of a few happy-go-lucky savage tribes living in lands of plenty, but that he is the first civilized man who ever attained anything like a state of health, is the comment made by Robert L. Duffus, in the Century Magazine.

The proof is in death and mortality rates. At the beginning of the century, in the United States registration area, the death rate was 17.6 a thousand, in 1921 it was 11.6 and though it rose to 12.6 during 1923, its general tendency is still downward.

In New York city the rate dropped from 20.26 in 1898 to 11.72 in 1923. Infant mortality in New York city was reduced during the same period from 205 a thousand to 63. Death rates are, of course, an average between extremes. In the cities of Mississippi in 1923 the rate was 20.3 a thousand; in the rural districts of Iowa 6.5 a thousand; among large groups of insurance policy holders, 8.9 a thousand.

As hygienic knowledge spreads, the average will naturally tend to approach the minimum. But even now medical science in the United States may be credited with saving at least one-half million lives yearly that twenty-five years ago would have been lost.

The baby born in 1900 had a life expectation of about forty-nine years; now it may count on living, with reasonable luck, seven years longer. Certain diseases, as everyone knows, have been almost wiped out. The death rate from typhoid has been reduced nearly 80 per cent, that from tuberculosis nearly 50 per cent. Yellow fever, typhus, malaria, diabetes, the hookworm disease, diphtheria and scarlet fever are wiped out or under control.

Surgery of all descriptions has made remarkable advances. New drugs have been found which alleviate suffering and promote recovery; in fact, it may almost be said that a new medical chemistry has developed.

More and more the treatment of disease is an exact science, with predictable results.

The modern physician is almost as far ahead of the practitioner of the eighties as the latter was ahead of an Indian medicine man. Good roads, the motor car and modern methods of sanitary organization have made the new knowledge accessible even in remote regions.

Bananas Grow in Favor

The import record of 1924, says the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, shows a larger number of bananas entering the United States than in any earlier year, and the sum paid therefor also the largest on record. The total value of the bananas imported was $22,674,000 against $16,398,000 ten years ago in the fiscal year 1914, and $7,710,000 twenty years ago in the fiscal year 1904. Originally a native of the Malay-archipelago, the banana was introduced to tropical America, especially the Caribbean countries, in the early days of the development of that area. Its importance as a food supply attracted attention in the United States, and a very large sum of American capital has been invested in its development, and that of the railways by which it is transported to the water's edge, the steamships which bring it to our ports, and the especially constructed railway cars and warehouses by which it is distributed the country over. The number of bananas consumed in the United States now approximates 6,000,000,000, since the 47,000,000 bunches imported last year are estimated to average about 125 bananas to a bunch.

Lotta's Esprit

An actor was talking about the famous Lotta Crabtree, who bequeathed her $4,000,000 estate to charity. He chuckled and went on:

"Lotta was funny to the end. I asked her one day to buy some oil shares—I was interested in oil at the time—and she said if she did that she'd be as ignorant as the old lady."

"An old lady," she said, "was visited by a young art student just back from Paris."

"Here's a French franc, ma'am," said the art student, "that I've brought you from Paris as a souvenir."

"The old lady looked at the coin and frowned."

"Oh, shucks," she said, "I'd rather ye'd brought me one o' them there Latin quarters."

Rats in Fatal Tangle

A group of fair-sized rats was the first thing that Rev. Olney I. Darling of Warren saw when he opened his hencoop, and instead of a mad scramble at his intrusion, the rats were unable to get away. Upon investigation, Mr. Darling found their tails so tangled together that they could not free themselves. The rats had entered the coop through a hole, but the last one had not been able to negotiate the opening. Some one ventured the suggestion that the rats had tangled their tails together so they could gain more power to pull the unfortunate one through the hole. Before killing the pests, the minister called his housekeeper so that he might have a witness to corroborate his story.—Boston Globe.

THE OLD MALE RESPONSIBLE FOR NEW MATE

Emancipation Has Come Thru Modern Appliances and Inventions.

One of the oldest ills of woman has been conquered at last.

It's the pack-ache.

Down thru the ages, woman has been the easy victim of this stubborn malady. She contracted it by packing. In the first era of her housework, she packed home the game her husband soaked it with a stone hatchet. Then some one invented fire and she packed wood and water. A little later, such was the progress of civilization, she found herself packing mops and brooms and clothes baskets and portable laundry tubs.

Then along came the gasoline era and scrapped the equine, her only rival. As a matter of course, she hopped right in, became a veritable pack horse and carted home the meats and groceries.

But "them days are gone forever," man has emancipated woman with a row of electric buttons.

The last paragraph preceding is the philosophy of Sarah Tyson Rorer, dean of American housekeepers who for fifty years has been a national authority on the arts and sciences of the kitchen. She was telling about it in 1893 at the World's fair in Chicago. She was still talking at the Woman's World's fair in Chicago in 1925 and she hadn't run out of facts or audiences either.

Here's what she has to say about the emancipation of women:

"It's the new man who deserves the credit for the new woman."

"He has taken the scrubbing brushes out of our hands, covered our kitchen floors with linoleum that easily can be mopped and given us sanitary porcelain sinks."

"He has exchanged our brooms and our dustpans for rows of electric switches. When we want to sweep, we press an electric button and vacuum cleaner starts. When we want to wash, we press another and the electric washer goes into action."

"He has made us better bread. It's uniform in size and quality. He serves us pasteurized milk in sterilized containers. He sends our fuel and water to us over wires and in pipes."

"He has given us stoves that regulate themselves and fireless cookers, so that we may be off at our lectures or luncheons, our meetings or our parties, while the dinner cooks."

"He has given us telephones so that we can 'phone for food' and thus increase our leisure by doing our marketing and shopping from our homes. He has placed at the ends of the wires, men trained to understand and to carry out our wishes."

"This new man makes our clothes, hemstitches and embroiders our linens and knits our hose."

"He has provided automobiles, street cars, subways and busses that we may make every minute count."

"Yes, the men have given us the new freedom we are talking about so much."

Flocking to Australia

Since the United States began restricting immigration, southern Europe has turned covetous eyes on Australia, and there has been a great influx of Slavs, Greeks, Italians, Maltese and other peoples. The latest advice is that the steamer Cephee will arrive there in a few weeks with 1,200 Yugoslavs.

Sir George Fuller, premier of New South Wales, has written the federal government suggesting that the commonwealth institute a quota system on the American lines, or adopt other means to limit foreign immigration.

Official government statements declare that while the need for population in Australia is urgent some substantial reason must be advanced before the door be shut against white Europeans. Nevertheless, the government is watching the situation carefully.

Prune Grape Vines for Best Results

Work Usually Done While Plants Are Dormant.

Bearing grape vines must be pruned every year if a profitable yield is to be secured.

This work is usually done while the vines are still dormant, advises J. H. Clark, instructor in fruit growing at the New Jersey State College of Agriculture. "A heavy pruning is necessary to stimulate vigorous wood growth, to keep the plant within bounds, and to leave only as many buds as can produce good-sized clusters.

"The amount of old wood left at pruning time should be no more than is necessary to act as a support to the producing canes. In the Kniffen system of training, which is recommended for New Jersey, a single trunk extends to the top wire of the two-wire trellis. Four vigorous, one-year-old canes, a little above the average in length and starting as near the trunk as possible, are selected to produce the crop. These should be so located that one cane can be tied in each direction along each wire. Each of these canes is cut back to eight or ten buds, depending on the vigor of the vine, making a total of 32 to 40 buds on the entire plant.

"This number of buds distributed over four canes will produce more fruit than the same number of buds on spurs, each bearing only two to four buds. Since the canes which bear fruit one year are removed the next, some provision must be made for renewal. This is provided for by selecting four other canes as close as possible to where renewal canes will be wanted a year later, and cutting them back to spurs of two buds each. All remaining canes are then removed entirely.

"These recommendations can easily be applied to other systems of training. The removal of as much old wood as possible and keeping 30 to 40 buds on four or five one-year-old canes to produce the crop are the essential points."

Farming Becoming More Difficult, Says Expert

According to Director Sidney B. Haskell of the Massachusetts experiment station, farming is becoming more difficult, due to higher market standards, soil fertility problems, insect pests, plant and animal diseases, and competition with the factory which has brought about a shorter working day. This increasing difficulty works to the advantage of the educated farmer.

The future of farming looks bright because of the increasing population, because there are no longer great areas of untitled soil in the West, and because the Middle West and South are now passing through the same era of industrialization which the East has already had.

Each section of the country must adapt itself more and more to that type of agriculture that best fits its market and transportation facilities, its soil and its climatic conditions, and in order to compete on the market at the price set by the large producing areas, farmers must reach certain standards of efficiency per acre, per dollar and per man.

More and more attention must be given to good seed, productive live stock, economical use of labor and to the application of proper fertilizers in sufficient quantity to give the greatest profit.

Pasturing Sweet Clover During Second Season

Sweet clover, the second season, should be pastured as soon as an animal is able to get a mouthful and should be grazed heavily, according to specialists of the Kansas State Agricultural college.

If a seed crop is desired, grazing should cease the last of June or the first of July and the crop should be allowed to make seed. Harvesting should be done September 1, or before. Close grazing is not likely to hurt sweet clover. As a matter of fact, it benefits the following seed crop, where seed is desired, by forcing the plant to make a fine, bushy growth, instead of a coarse, upright growth.

Farm Hints

Select the best eggs for hatching.
Top-dress small grain with nitrate of soda.
.....
Plow every day the ground is dry enough.
.....
Order any repair parts needed for farm implements.
.....
High quality in seeds is worth more than it costs.
.....
Clean up around edges of fields and other places where needed.
.....
A germination test on seed corn makes a pretty good insurance policy.
.....
As bad accounts bankrupt a business, so worthless cows will break a dairyman.
.....
That ounce of prevention—look up the latest control measures for insect pests, and plan for them beforehand.

Unity and Concord
Two are better than one, because they have a good reward for their labor. And if one prevail against him, two shall withstand him; and a threefold cord is not quickly broken.—Ecclesiastes.

Memorial to Peace
The Portal of Peace is a massive concrete structure in the form of a gateway. It is located at Blaine, Wash., and was dedicated September 6, 1921, in honor of the peace between the United States and Canada, which had lasted for more than 100 years without a break. The memorial, which cost $40,000, stands 100 yards from the international boundary where the forty-ninth parallel meets Boundary bay.

You've used double boilers, of course, and know how safely cereals and other delicate foods can be cooked in them. The famous Fresh Air Oven of the Estate Gas Range is built exactly like a double boiler, and distributes heat in the same way. No more "humps"—no more scorching—instead, pies and cakes and cookies that melt in the mouth. It's different—this Estate oven—but it's founded on a principle as old as the double boiler. Rubber Fruit
The luscious tropical fruits in a fully ripened state soon may appear on distant markets with each piece of fruit incased in a rubber composition known as latex.
Fruit dipped in the compound while it is warm retains all the original flavor. Strawberries, considered a difficult fruit to handle unless picked when very green, have been shipped half way around the world in latex.
The coating of rubber shuts out all the air, preventing any decomposition of the fruit. The latex becomes brittle when cold and is easily removed from the fruit.

The world's largest granite stone was recently quarried at Rockville, Minn. The stone, which was broken out by means of "jackhammers," is 150 feet long, 75 feet thick, and 23 feet wide. It weighs 8,500,000 pounds.

Keeps on Keeping On!
When last I went West by way of the "Broadway Limited," I was sitting on the observation platform watching the scenery dash by, when the porter came out to straighten the chairs which had been left in some disorder by a group of young folks.
"We don't seem to be going so much faster than an ordinary local train, George," I commented. "How, then, can this be the fastest train on earth?"
"Well, suh," replied the African with a grin, "de fac' is we alls doan go no faster'n lots of them pesky locals, but we gits dar in quick time because we jist keeps on keeping on."—W. L. Barnhart, in Forbes Magazine (New York.)

He Chose to Drink a Cup of Tea
By MORRIS SCHULTZ
(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)
"YOU win," said Sotherby at the club. "I was sure the income tax would be reduced before the end of the financial year, and I lose. Name the forfeit!"
Briggs smiled sarcastically. "Seems to me, Sotherby, you'd better go a little slower on that betting propensity of yours in future. You can either pay me the five thousand or—" He paused and looked about him at the expectant circle. "Or sit down in the middle of Fifth avenue at three o'clock in the afternoon and drink a cup of tea."

"I'll drink the tea," said Sotherby. "You're crazy," answered Briggs. "On Friday afternoon at three o'clock. Have your witnesses."
Anybody who has not seen Fifth avenue at three o'clock in the afternoon can form little idea of the magnitude of Sotherby's undertaking. Four lines of motorcars, crawling at a snail's pace, omnibuses, taxis and other vehicles; in the center towers of direction at intervals, policemen holding up their hands and blowing whistles to stop the traffic east and west or north and south to permit swarms of pedestrians to pass. Order out of confusion, multitudes of human beings—a veritable hive.

Into this confusion, at half-past two on Friday afternoon, a burly Irishman stalks, followed by a gang of Italian laborers with shovels and pickaxes and ropes. A letter to the police officer on duty at the intersection of Thirty-fifth street, a hurried consultation, a walk to the street telephone box.
At the city hall a phone girl's running her switch to the empty office of Incumbrances—the head was away that day. The girl got a cool thousand for her services, the clerk in the office fifteen hundred—he valued his job, but was quite willing to start for Hawaii on the night train with fifteen hundred, to learn to grow pineapples. An answer to the sergeant who had reinforced the patrolman at the telephone box. A call to headquarters. A brief consultation. Then—

Whistles are blown. Patrolmen station themselves at the four corners of Thirty-fourth and Thirty-sixth. Cursing taxi drivers and protesting chauffeurs are shunted around four streets. A block of Fifth avenue grows bare as the pedestrians scurry out of the way.
Ropes are strung across Fifth avenue at Thirty-fourth and Thirty-sixth. The intervening space is empty. A gang of laborers strings itself out in single file in the middle of the road. Pickaxes descend into the asphalt. The burly Irishman shouts violent commands.
"Fer the love of Mike what they doing? Building a new subway here?"
"Naw, taking up the drain pipes."
"You're dippy. They're laying a new transmarine cable!"
Spectators press against the ropes. A squad of police comes up at the double. They form a thin line about the excavators.

The work proceeds. The asphalt flies up in greasy chunks. From the windows of the club Briggs and his friends watch in growing amazement. They cannot believe their eyes.
"If Sotherby worked that trick it's going to cost him fifteen or twenty thousand in damages alone, not to speak of a few years to cool his heels in the pen."
"Bah, it isn't Sotherby. They're repairing an underground wire."
The work proceeds. It is three o'clock. The burly Irishman strides from curb to curb. He measures the distance. He draws a yard-measure from his pocket and measures off half the distance. He takes a soap-box and sits down on it in the middle of the street and in the middle of the gang. From a pocket of his capacious overcoat he draws a vacuum bottle. From another pocket he takes a cup of granite ware. He fills the cup from the thermos bottle. It contains tea. He rises to his feet, bows to the club window, and drinks.
"By God, it's Sotherby!"
Sotherby, having finished his tea, dips under the ropes and disappears. Once out of sight he takes a taxi to the pier.

An excellent time for that long-projected trip to Japan and the Philippines.
Their Occupation
A wild yelling caused a motorist in the Rumpus Ridge region to hasten around the next bend in the road. He beheld a pack of children, composed of parts of the Johnson, Giggery and Yawkey families, jumping up and down and beating their bosoms with their clenched fists, while they howled with great vigor.
"What's the matter?" asked the traveler. "Are you in trouble?"
"No!" they shouted in unison. "We're looking for it!"—Kansas City Star.

Precisely
"I have been writing to a matrimonial agency. They offer to introduce me to lady with a million dollars. I asked for a photograph, but they declined to furnish one. I think I'll marry her, though, if I can."
"But you don't know what she looks like."
"True, but I know what a million dollars looks like."

Football on the Roof
Within a stone's throw of that cathedral dome the preservation of which is now the business of the whole world, there is a sports ground on which cricket and football have been played regularly for the last 50 years.
You might search for this a long time without finding it—it is on the roof of St. Paul's choir house. There, on almost any day in the week, you may find half-a-dozen youngsters in football shorts or flannels exercising in a wire-netted cage which is about the length of a cricket pitch.
When the choir house was built it was realized that it was necessary for the boys to have some place where they could play games, and, this being impossible in the crowded city streets, a sports ground was laid out on the roof.—London Tit-Bits.

How To Invest Your Savings

You will never succeed in accumulating a substantial sum of money if you try to be your own banker, for when you keep your savings at home they not only draw no interest, but they may be stolen, burned, lost, or what is more likely—spent.

The safest and most profitable course to pursue is to open an account in our Savings Department, where your money earns 3 per cent interest, compounded semi-annually.

"The Bank that makes you feel at home"—the oldest, best equipped and located institution for the conservation of Savings in Pickaway County, cordially invites your patronage.

Finger-Nail Defects

Furrows of the nails are sometimes caused by a local disease which can only be prescribed for by a physician. If these ridges grow toward the end of the nail, they may be eventually removed by the trimming process. If they are longitudinal they cannot be removed by this method, but can only be improved by thorough polishing.

STATE CELEBRITIES IN NATIONAL ABBEY

Statuary Hall Famous Show- place of Capital.

Every state of the Union was represented at the inaugural ceremonies on March 4; visitors from twenty-nine states found great men of their commonwealths memorialized in the Statuary hall of the United States Capitol building.

"Statuary hall, in the older portion of the Capitol, is a room which holds more historic associations than any other chamber in America," writes Dr.
Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic society.

An unwarranted phrase has made it popular to call Statuary hall a chamber of artistic horrors. Such designation does injustice to the art and the history of the room where the house of representatives met for forty years and which now exemplifies a really fine memorial idea.

Here Lincoln, John Quincy Adams,
Horace Greeley and Andrew Johnson served in the same congress. Here Henry Clay welcomed Lafayette, who replied in a speech said to have been written by Clay. Here John Marshall administered the oath of office to Madison and Monroe.

When, in 1825, the house balloted in this room for President, John Quincy Adams won over Andrew Jackson.
The former, the only man to be elected to the house after being President, was stricken with paralysis suddenly.
In this chamber, after delivering an impassioned address; the latter, while President, narrowly escaped an assassin upon leaving this room, where he had attended the funeral of a congressional friend.

A bronze star marks the location of Adams' desk. The star happened also to denote a spot where one may hear the whisper of a friend who stands in the corresponding position on the opposite side of the hall. Move away from the spot and the speaker's voice fails to carry, even when he speaks loudly.

Closed to visitors now is the narrow gallery of the old house, reached by dark, tortuous steps worn deep by the tread of many feet. In this gallery Dickens gleaned notes for his comments on America's congress. He called Washington "a city of magnificent intentions."

Close your eyes and see John Randolph stalk in, with squirrel cap and homespun suit, white boots and jingling spurs; he has just galloped through muddy streets from Georgetown. Throwing cap and coat to his desk, he drinks a glass of porter handed him by an attendant and cuts in on any debate, in thin, querulous, piping voice. Here another type of orator, Edward Everett, just out of the pulpit, charmed his hearers.

For some years religious services were held in the old hall of representatives on Sunday afternoons; Lincoln attended them during the war period, when the hall was crowded because many churches had been converted into barracks.

The floor of this room was raised to its present level when the hall was converted into an American Westminster abbey. Tradition has it that the lower level of the old floor led to the popular designation of the house of representatives as the "lower house."

When the old hall was deserted for the new, a law was enacted, in 1864, providing that the states could use it as a place to do national honor to the memory of their sons and daughters renowned for civil and military service, each state being entitled to place two statues here.

His First Deer

"Get any deer on your hunting trip, old man?" asked Brown of his friend Perkins, who had been in Maine on his maiden expedition for big bucks.

"One!" replied Perkins, but his voice lacked enthusiasm.

"Tell me all about it," insisted Brown, who was considerably surprised that his friend should have such good luck on a first trip.

"Well, answered Perkins, "it was like this: I think the buck must have been deaf—anyway, the guide and myself got within thirty feet of him, and then I fired my old 45 Springfield, which sounds like a cannon. The buck dropped at the report and didn't move a muscle again. We examined him all over, and there wasn't a mark—I missed him, and the guide said he probably had a weak heart and died from the terrific noise!"—Judge.

With Accessories

There is quite a bit of rivalry up on Maltman avenue, on the edge of Hollywood, over two babies. Little Ethel was quite proud of her tiny sister, and even though it was as bald as the usual run of babies, she thought nothing of it until Frank Atkinson's latest subdivision came into the world.

Little Doris Atkinson viewed the new baby for several days with ever-growing interest and finally went next door to Ethel's. "My gosh," she said,
"Your mother's baby isn't so much;
why, the new one we've got at my house came with a nice black bob already grown!"—Los Angeles Times.
